About Kasey

Kasey's love of design was fostered in her childhood by a father in the furniture industry and a mother with a talent for creating beautiful homes and gardens. Kasey holds degrees in both Architecture and Interior Architecture. Upon graduation Kasey spent a few years in England which increased her love for and appreciation of historic properties. In 2006 she founded Clerestory Design, a full-service Interior Design firm specializing in residential renovation and the restoration of historic homes.

Relying on her expertise in construction and renovation, Kasey has worked on historic properties throughout North Carolina, including countless projects in the state's largest historic district located in Washington NC. Her most acclaimed project was the full restoration of a three-story home built in 1785, the Hyatt House. This home had been unoccupied since 1967 and was almost deteriorated to the point of no return. For two years Kasey led this project bringing this historic structure to the 21st century while following the state guidelines for historic properties, preserving its character and history. "It is important to find that perfect balance between protecting the character of a historic home and designing a space that is comfortable and practical for today's homeowner." This rewarding project has been featured in local publications and on historic home tours.

Clerestory Design and her volunteer roles allow Kasey the opportunity to apply her education and experience to many aspects of design. While she is known for her love of historic properties and her keen eye for color, each project is unique and designed to reflect the client and their tastes. "I believe that your home should tell your story. It should reflect who you are, how you live and what you love."

Kasey is passionate about sharing her love for design with others and helping them to apply good design to their home. She was delighted to serve as the Key Note Speaker two years in a row at the HG-FUMC Home and Garden Weekend. She has spoken to countless Garden Clubs, Historic groups and organization and the Daughter's of the Revolution.
